ABSTRACT:

Congress has played a significant role in the politics of the state even when it did not have its independent unit operating within the state. Its contribution in secularisation of politics within the state has proved very decisive especially during 1947 partition. In Post 1947 it played a very significant role in shaping the politics both in positive as well as in its negative dimensions. Congress also played a very vital role in granting special constitutional position and abrogating the same.

Abstract Report: The Title Accurately Said The Study was About.

INTRODUCTION:

The Indian National Congress founded in December 18851 is the political party under which the Indian National freedom movement was carried out against the British colonialism. It was not a sudden development but an outcome of those forces which were at work before its birth. Actually the growing National consciousness was finding its expression in the ranking local, regional and a few national organisations.

CONCLUSION:

This increased significance of Congress in post 2002 scenario has also a regional dimension; the Congress by and large has been represented Jammu region. It was in this context that Gh. Nabi Azad assuming power in 2005 was taken as Chief Minister from Jammu region first time in the history of the state. People have a different perspective on the phenomena depending on the perspective that they represent. This in a way also represents a certain balance of power sharing arrangement between Jammu & Kashmir regions.

Conclusion Report: The Text is Rounded off with a Conclusion that Discusses the Implication of The Findings & Ideas Discussed & Their Impact on Future Research Direction.
