ABSTRACT

The 'Doctrine of pleasure' which was incorporated in Government of India Act, 1935, was not added to the services provisions in Draft Constitution. Only the safeguards against the dismissal as aforesaid were incorporated. A member of the constituent Assembly has pointed out that without an efficient Civil Service, it will be impossible for the government to carry on and the continuity of policy to be kept.

Introduction

Act of 1947 provided basic safeguards for the services under the state, some of which were taken from Act of 1935 Supreme Court of India in State of Madras v. K.M. Rajgopalan,¹ held that there was an automatic termination of service of the members of the Indian Civil Service on the transfer of powers by the British crown to the dominion of India.

Result

Must add result in your article.

A Good Result :-

Results are as per aims and objective and useful to further research .

Conclusion

After discussing the various legislative provisions regarding civil servants it seems that Article 309 to 311 deals with civil servants broadly. Along with the doctrine of pleasure various safeguards are provided under Article 311. In order to reach to the conclusion, there is a dire need to study about the ambit and scope of doctrine of pleasure

A Good Conclusion :-

Thus, the research have wider scope for new academician and research scholars. Clarify the majority of your perceptions however much as could be expected, concentrating on systems.

REVIEWER COMMENTS

- The work, as with all work advancing from this specific gathering, is generally sound.
- My remarks here are concerned singularly with the association of the composition.
- Thought of these focuses will, I accept, lead to an enhanced report that better shows the key ideas and conclusions.
