Dr. Hema Chandra. P. N

ABSTRACT:

The problem statement was clear and well articulated Today the whole country's economy is undergoing structural changes and transformation. The rural economy is not exception to this. With the changing ideology under revision of economic conditions from protectionism to globalization, from nationalization to privatization and from restrictions and controls to liberalization and de-licensing the whole Indian economic scenario is undergoing fast structural transformation and changes in all sectors.

INTRODUCTION:

The introduction provides a good, generalized background of the topic that quickly gives the reader an appreciation Change is a law of nature. Change may either positive or negative. Now a days the impact of globalization, modernization, privatization, and liberalization on the structure of economy particularly on rural economy is clearly seen. The process of change in the rural economic structure has a lot turning point on the national economy. The intensity and extensiveness of the changes depends on the conditions prevailing in a particular area and in a particular sector. All sectors of the economy viz.,

METHODOLOGY:

This study was conceptual in nature. Author described a variable under study in detail. As the study concentrates mainly on the rural economic structure, the secondary data is collected to examine the overall changes in the structure of Aralamallige Village. Census reports, handbooks, monographs, and other books published by Government are referred to collect the required secondary data.

PRESENTATION OF RESULTS:

The amount of data presented was sufficient and appropriate. Tables, graphs, or figures were used judiciously and agree with the text Change is a law of nature and it is a continuous process both in terms of time and space. The economy of Aralamallige village is not exception to the above said rule and this can be seen in the preceding analysis of the structural changes in many aspects.
