REVIEW OF THE ARTICLE

Proprietary Rights Of Jenmi And Kudiyan In Travancore – A Study

Dr. P. Justin Paul

ABSTRACT:

The TITLE matches with the contents of the paper The origin and the development of Jenmi system in Travancore has been a subject of serious study in recent time. A Jenmi is often termed as a land-lord. Any person, who holds a patta from a collector in a British District and under it holds lands from the British Government subject to Government tax more or less is called a land-lord in ordinary language. Even in Travancore, any coffee planter or indeed any ryot who holded lands under a grant from the Sirkar, etc or might be called a land-lord. But be it remembered, such land-lords were not Jenmis.

INTRODUCTION:

Author introduced the topic neatly and clearly Jenmam lands were precisely what were in Europe called allodial properties as contra-distinguished from feudal. It must be clear from what had been stated that all the lands in Travancore belonged to a body of Jenmis. There were no lands that did not belong to some Jenmi or other. But it is remembered that the Sirkar itself was one of those Jenmis, having come to possess Jenmam lands by gift, purchase, escheat, confiscation and other ways. If any person wanted land in Travancore, he must obtain it from an hold it of, some one of the body of Jenmis ie, from the Sirkar, which was the Chief Jenmi or from some other Jenmi. The origin of Jenmam property may be briefly explained here with a view to make the rights of Jenmis and Kudiyan.
