REVIEW OF THE ARTICLE

Social Exclusion And Deprivation Of Scheduled Tribes: The Case Of Jenu Kurubas In Kodagu District Of Karnataka

Dr. Harsha B D

ABSTRACT:

The TITLE matches with the contents of the paper Jenu Kurubas is one of the primitive tribal groups of Karnataka. The primary objective of this paper is to examine the nature and extent of deprivation of socially disadvantage groups of Jenu Kuruba Scheduled Tribes (STs) in Kodagu district of Karnataka. As per 2011 census data, the population of Jenu Kurubas is 36,076 in Karnataka mostly living in the districts of Mysore, Kodagu, and Chamarajanagar.

INTRODUCTION:

Author introduced the topic neatly and clearly The concept of social exclusion is the denial of equal opportunities imposed by certain agents on other which leads to inability of an individual or group in the functioning of society in the context of economic, social and political aspect. Social scientists across the globe have elaborately dwelt on the inter-linkages of poverty social exclusion, multiple deprivation and inequality.

METHODOLOGY:

Author has not mentioned any specific methodology. This study was descriptive in nature. Must add methodology in your article. Methodology used to per research topic.

PRESENTATION OF RESULTS:

The amount of data presented was sufficient and appropriate. Tables, graphs, or figures were used judiciously and agree with the text The isolated location and social exclusion of the Jenu Kuruba tribes from the main stream of life is hindering their economic activities. They are not able to participate wholly or partially in social, economic, cultural and political activities in the society. The high level of illiteracy, their ethnic identity and the rich forest produce tempted the money lenders, small traders and other dominant social groups to exploit the tribes. Further, the absence of monetary system and lack of communication facilities made their work easy to exploit the tribes.

REFERENCES:

Prior publication by the author(s) of substantial portions of the data or study was appropriately acknowledged.

RELEVANCE:

The paper is properly organized and demands appreciation. I think the paper will satisfy the interest of the readers.
