Some Basic Observation On The Rabha Society And Culture

Anup Sen

ABSTRACT:

The problem statement was clear and well articulated The Rabha belong to the Indo-Mongoloid group of people and have similarities with other members of Bodo group such as Garos, Kachari in particular. The Rabha tribe of West Bengal generally speaks local Bengali language but their own language called Kochcrow has come from Chini-Tibbeto or Kirat language family. A group of the Rabha people is found in Alipurduar district of West Bengal. Besides, considerable populations of the Rabha people are also inhabited in the neighbouring countries of India like Bangladesh, Nepal and Bhutan.

INTRODUCTION:

The introduction provides a good, generalized background of the topic that quickly gives the reader an appreciation Doors and Northern parts of West Bengal have unique geographical identity. The diversity of landscape and its aesthetic beauty, murmuring rivers, bracing climate, exotic flora and fauna of the area are the striking features. The area has also multi – ethnic, multi – cultural and multi -lingual characteristics. The social groups with diverse ethnic and linguistic origin represent various social stocks and social status of this area.

METHODOLOGY:

The present study was exclusively realized on secondary data sources. It was purely descriptive type of research since it describes the facts relating to the problem. The study is based on the perception study of a few Rabha People and author's own view gathered during field survey

PRESENTATION OF RESULTS:

The amount of data presented was sufficient and appropriate. Tables, graphs, or figures were used judiciously and agree with the text Therefore, it is evident that the society of Rabha tribe had indigenous tradition with distinctive identity and background which was wealthy, diverse that they enjoyed with intimacy. Those sweet moments are today's sweet memories for them and they tried to continue those, but unfortunately society, culture and elegance of past have been suffering from the identity crisis due to advent of modernity, even are rarely reflected in today's generation of Rabha's society.
